

URNS CLOCK BACK KEEPS WIFE AWAY, COURT FREES HIM

John Morrow Plays a Clever Trick and Wins Short-Lived Liberty.

John Morrow won his discharge in the Court of Domestic Relations today by the most ingenious method that has yet been employed in that tribunal, where many varieties of tricks and schemes come to light daily. His victory promises to be short-lived. This is the way it happened:

Mrs. Louis Morrow, John's wife—they left at No. 224 Revere street, Westchester—obtained a warrant yesterday charging John with failing to support her property. This morning when the case was called John stepped forward bravely, but there was no sign of Mrs. Morrow. John was directed to wait, and the case was again called an hour later. Four times it was called without a sign of the aggrieved wife and shortly before recess Magistrate Harris discharged Mr. Morrow.

Scarcely ten minutes had passed when Mrs. Morrow drove out of breath and ignorant:

"Has my case been called?" she asked Court Officer Kinney.

"Sure, it has," he replied, "four times and your husband was discharged. Why didn't you get here on time?"

"Oh, the tricky villain!" cried Mrs. Morrow. "The scheming, double-dealing monster! No wonder I didn't arrive in time and he was discharged. Do you know what that man did? Last night he turned the clock back three hours, and when I awoke this morning and thought it was one o'clock it was really 11, and I suppose he was off somewhere laughing at me."

When Mrs. Morrow had told this story in court Magistrate Harris admitted his admiration for the ingenuity of Mr. Morrow, but said it wouldn't do him any good. He issued another warrant and will hold Mr. Morrow until his wife arrives.

signed to-morrow before James F. Corcoran.

Barbour was walking along Market street when he saw Chester Garrison of No. 68 Rose street about to spank a boy for upsetting an ash can. Barbour insisted that the boy be released. Then, to the surprise, young Barbour dealt Garrison a knockout blow on the point of the chin.

Barbour, who is an amateur pugilist, walked away while his victim lay unconscious on the sidewalk. An ambulance was called to attend Garrison.

Barbour was arrested a few blocks distant from the scene of the fight. He did not know hitting Garrison and furnished bail for his appearance to-morrow morning.
